

Human-Centered Autonomous Resilient Space Habitats

Shirley J Dyke

Don and Patricia Coates Professor of Innovation in Mechanical Engineering

Professor of Civil Engineering

Purdue University

Supported under NASA grant 80NSSC19K1076

Hazards

Vacuum

Micrometeorites

Dust

Low Gravity

Radiation

Thermal extremes

Long nights

Moonquakes

Fire

Biohazards

Challenges

Disruptions are inevitable

Cascading consequences

Limited foresight

Constrained resources

Degradation, repairs

Uncrewed periods

Communication delays &
blackouts

Bandwidth limitations

Resilient ExtraTerrestrial Habitats Institute

Mission: To facilitate the realization of resilient and autonomous habitats

Resilience Thrust: Architecture

- Choose the right design features and tools to be resilient

Awareness Thrust: Detection+Diagnosis+Decisions

- Detect damage and disruptions, diagnose, support decision-making

Robotics Thrust: Enable Action

- Increase scope of interventions that can be carried out autonomously

Funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration

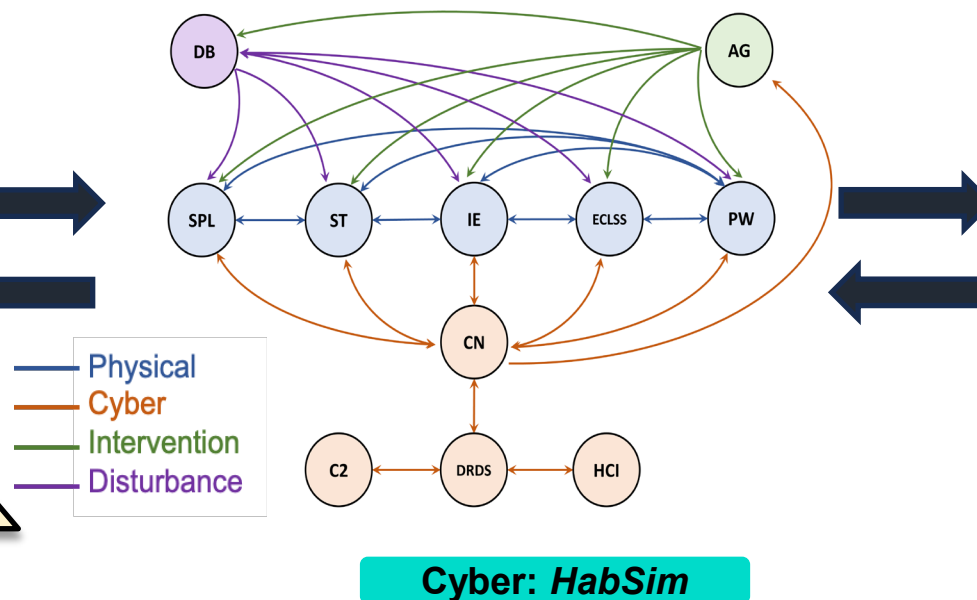

Three complementary testbeds developed to conduct the research

Diagnostics/Autonomy & Early Design

Control-oriented
Dynamic
Computational
Model
(CDCM)

HARSH a Shared Use Cyber-Physical Testbed for Testing, Validation, Digital Twins, etc

Physical Components

Resilient

*has the ability to react to, survive
and recover from a wide range of disruptions*

Resilient

*has the ability to react to, survive
and recover from a wide range of disruptions*

Autonomous

has the ability to achieve goals while operating independently of external control

Resilience-based Design

Design, evaluate, and select safety controls for foreseen and unforeseen disruptions using a resilience framework

Create a framework to design a habitat for resilience.

How can we evaluate and select safety controls to maximize resilience?

Resilience-based Design

Design, evaluate, and select safety controls for foreseen and unforeseen disruptions using a resilience framework

Create a framework to design a habitat for resilience.

How can we evaluate and select safety controls to maximize resilience?

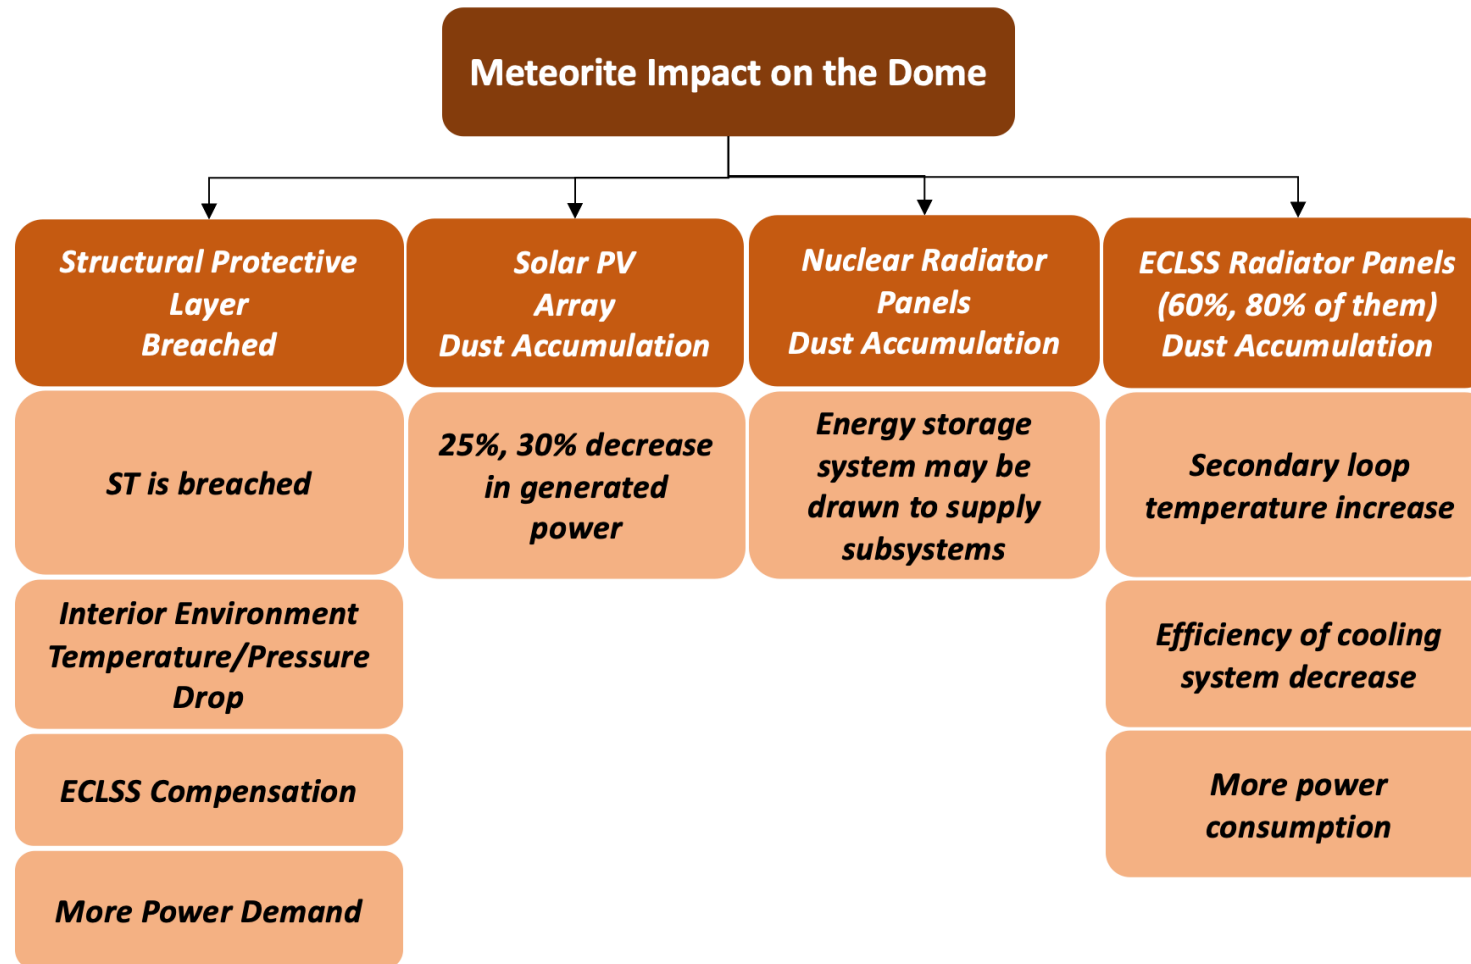

Resilience-based Design

Design, evaluate, and select safety controls for foreseen and unforeseen disruptions using a resilience framework

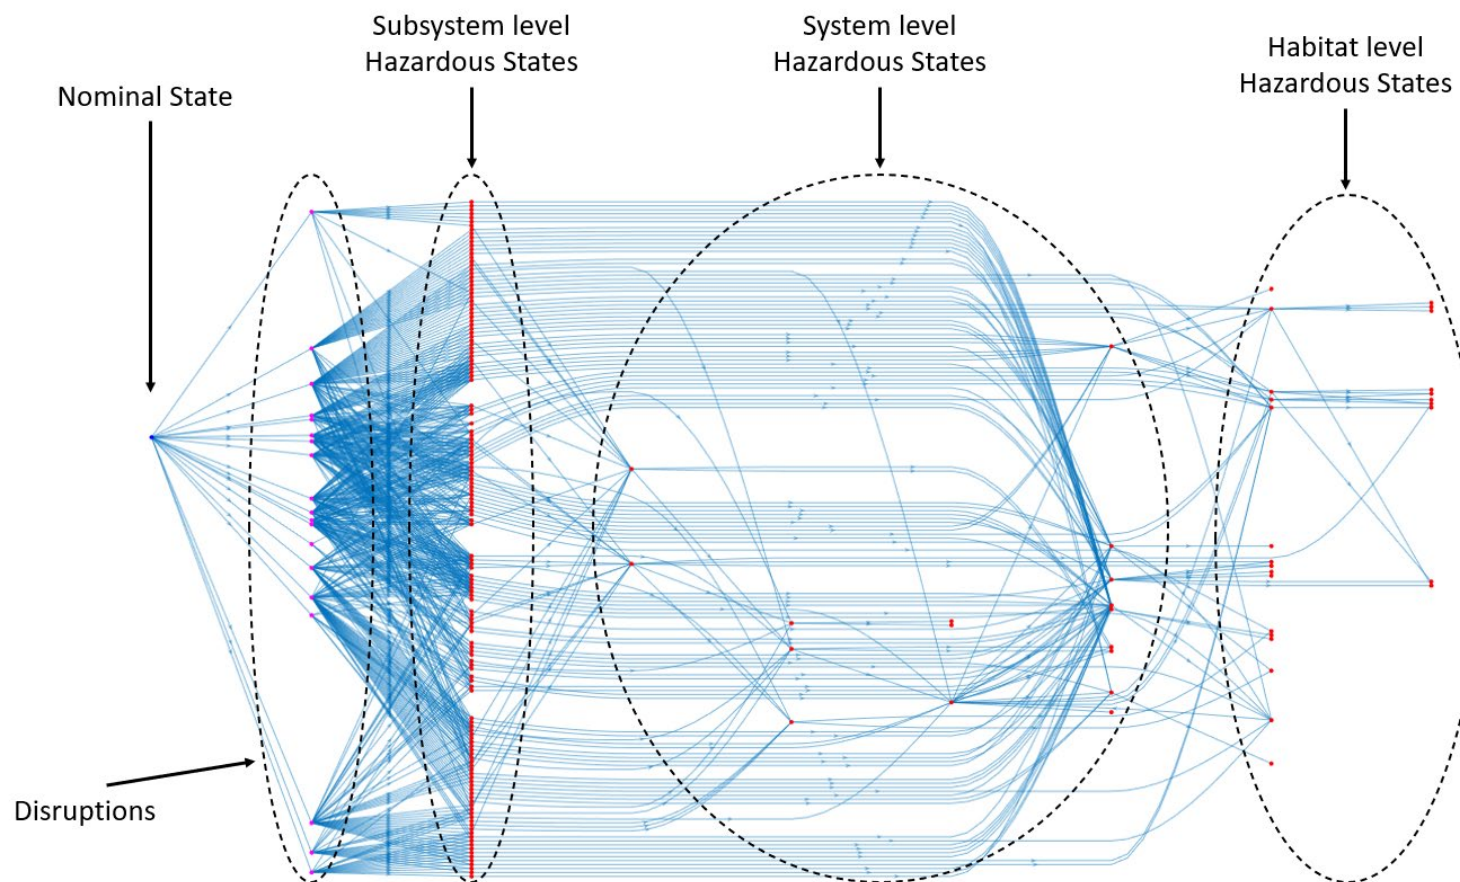

Resilience-based Design

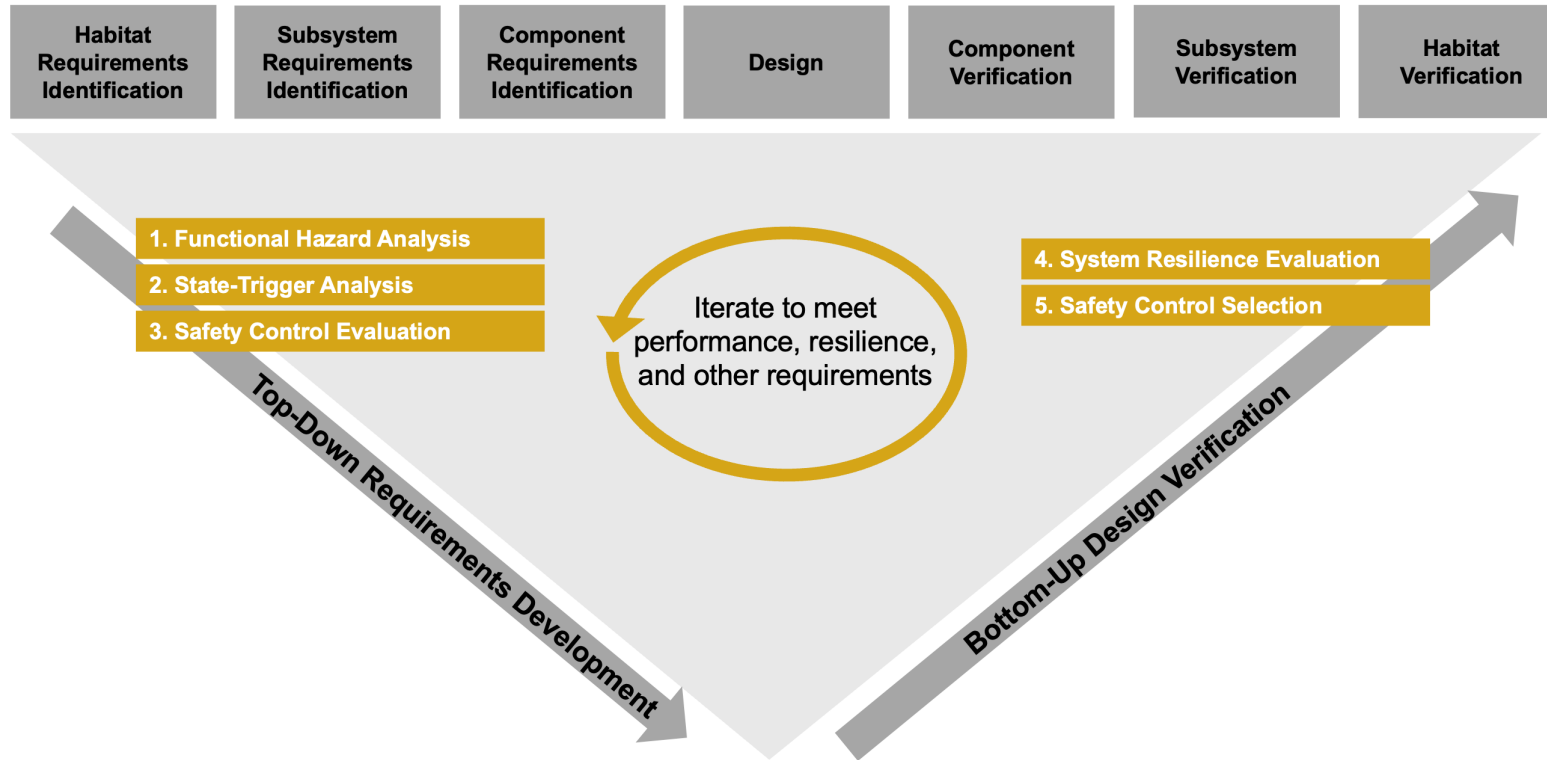

Resilience-based Design

7 disruptions, 19 triggers, 217 hazardous states, and 786 safety controls

Resilience-based Design

Control Effectiveness measures the effectiveness of a safety control implementation strategy to mitigate its target hazard

Resilience Potential is a measure of effectiveness of a safety control implementation strategy in mitigating multiple hazards or hazards for which it is not designed

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

Assess onboard monitoring, diagnostic reasoning, and task execution to recover from foreseen and unforeseen disruptions

What is the effect of delays on the resilience of deep space habitats?

How to provide onboard monitoring and reasoning to make decisions?

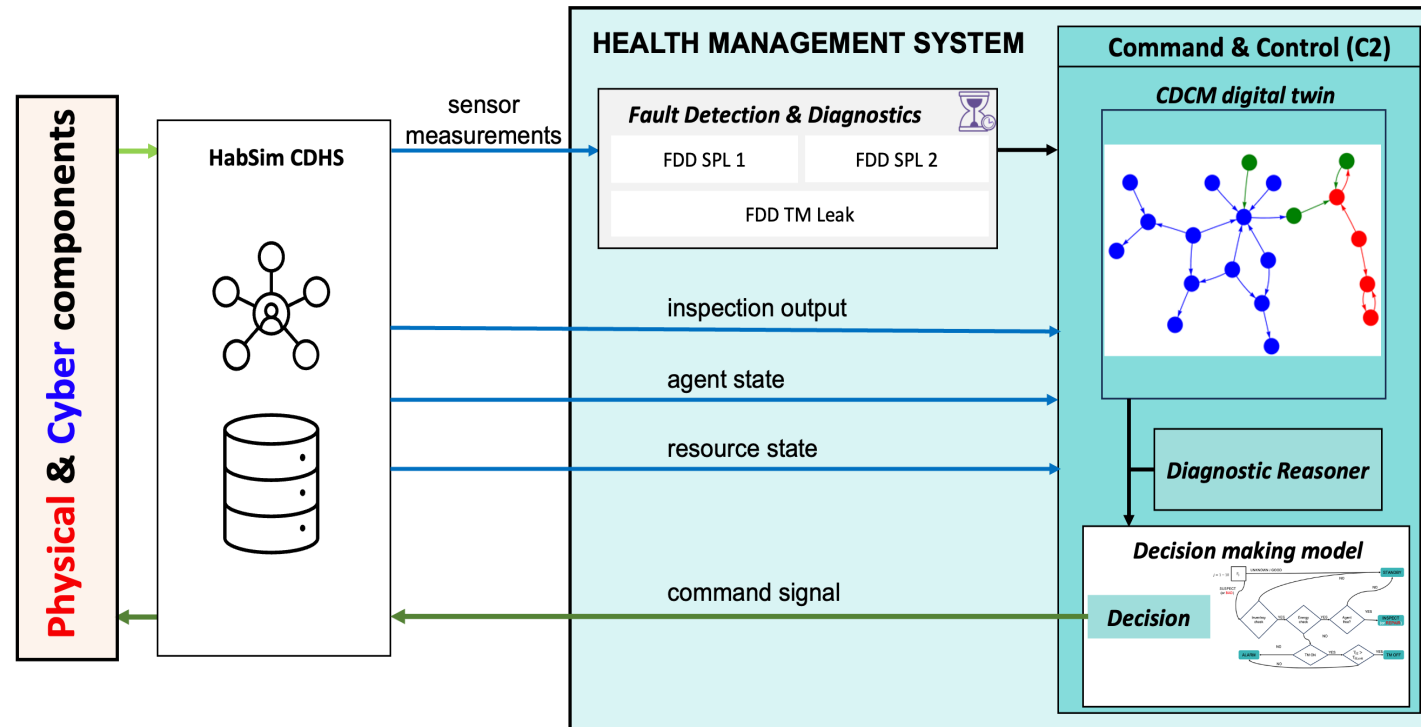

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

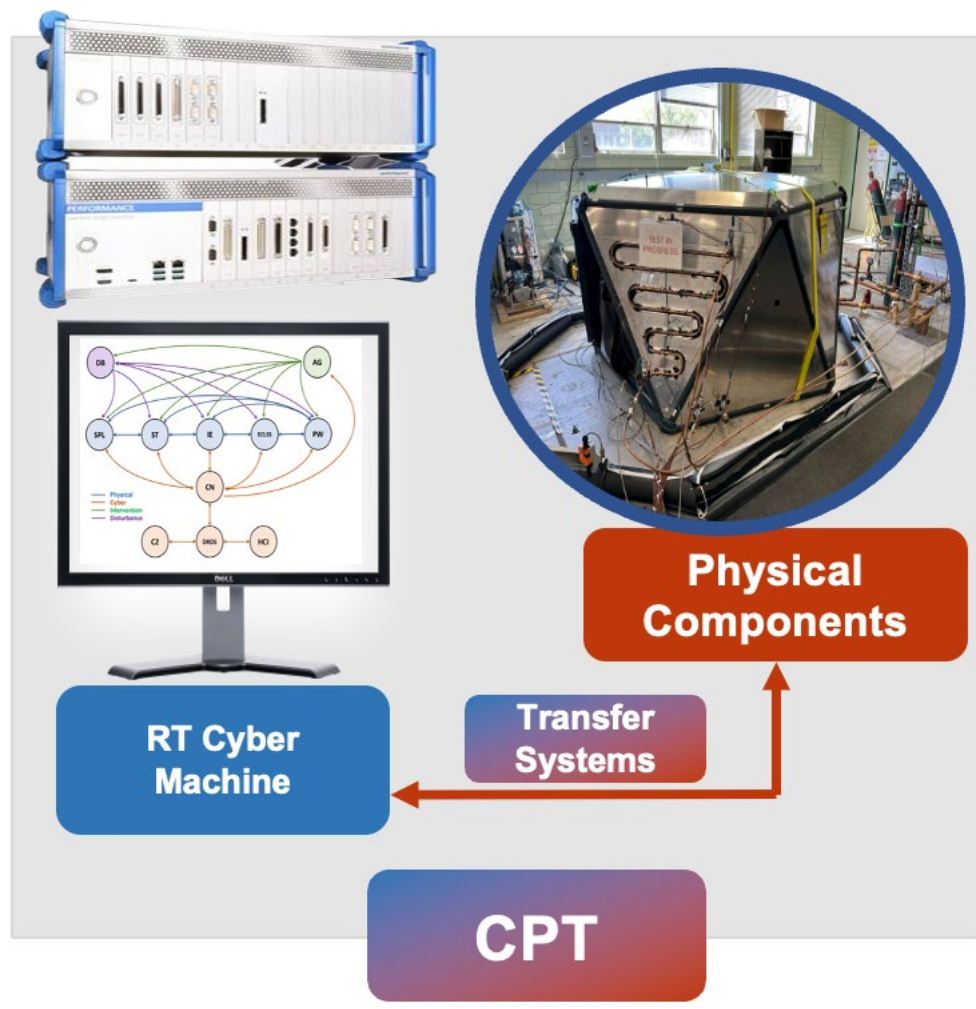

Assess onboard monitoring, diagnostic reasoning, and task execution to recover from foreseen and unforeseen disruptions

What is the effect of delays on the resilience of deep space habitats?

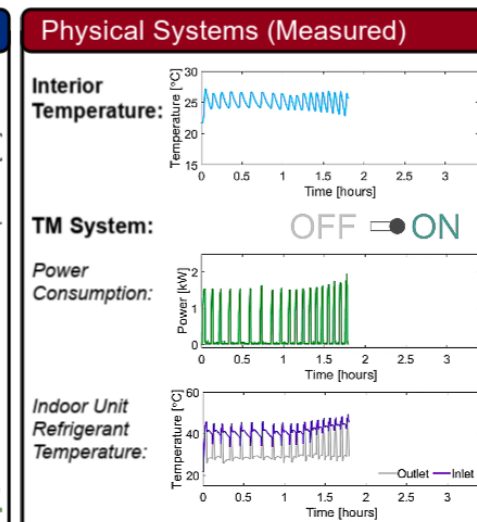

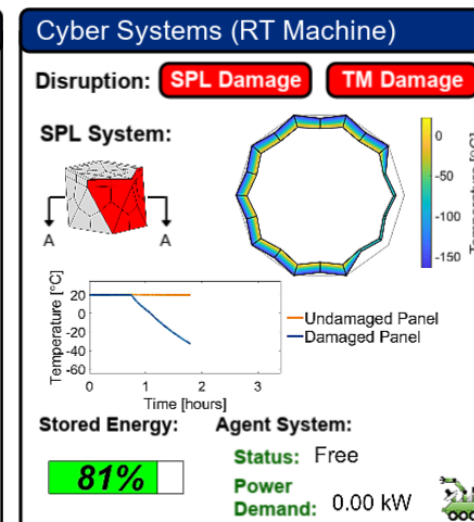

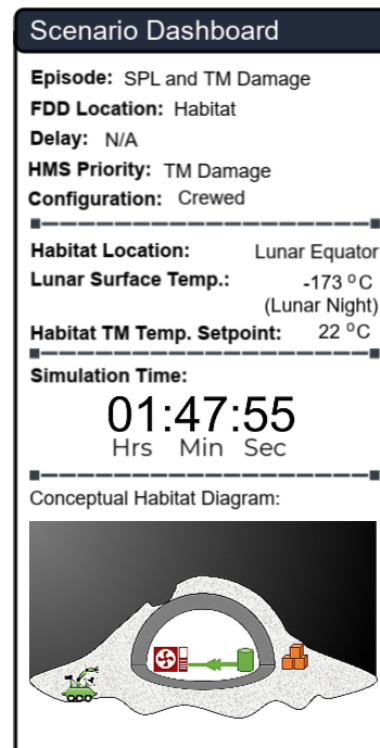

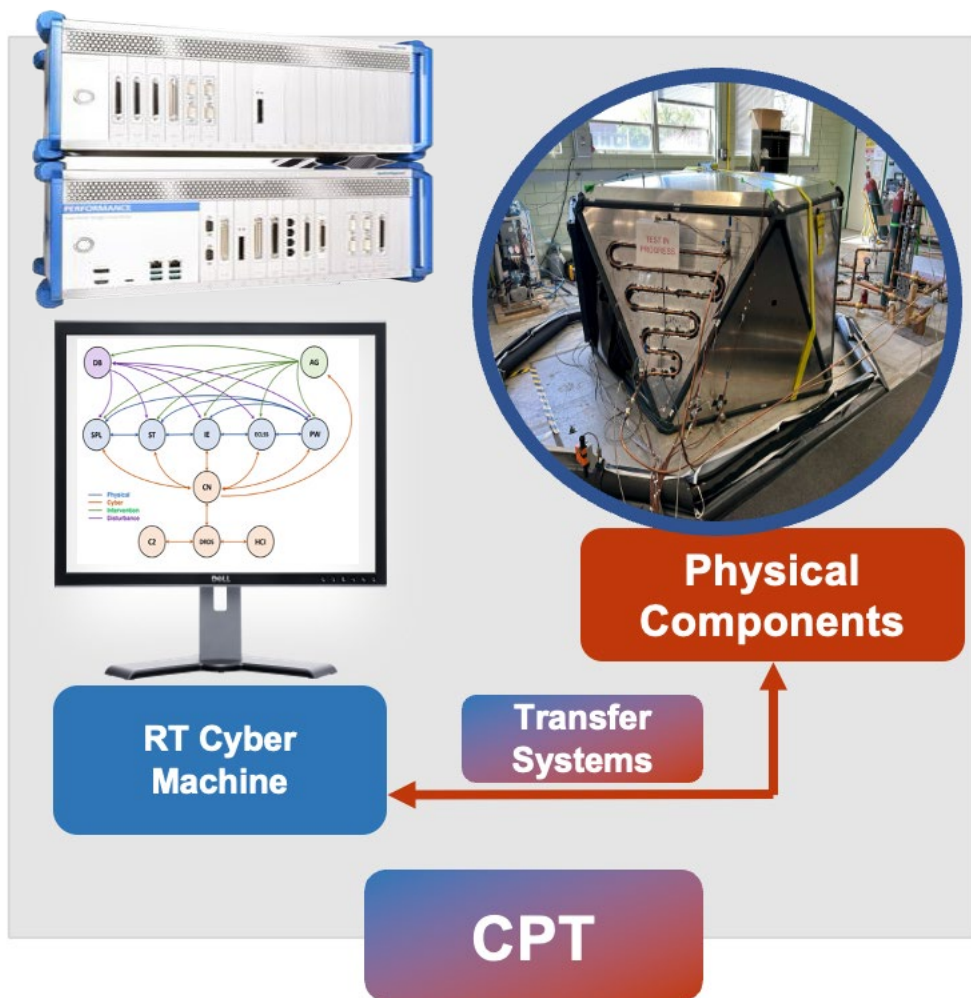

How to provide onboard monitoring and reasoning to make decisions?

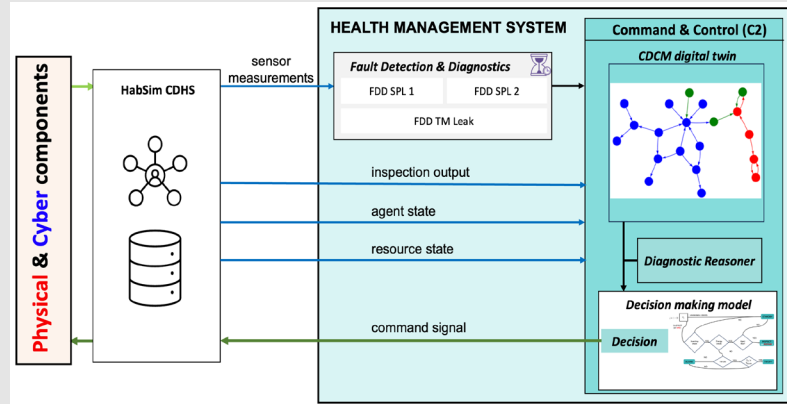

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

HMS

Scenario Dashboard

Episode: SPL and TM Damage
FDD Location: Habitat
Delay: N/A
HMS Priority: TM Damage
Configuration: Crewed

Habitat Location: Lunar Equator
Lunar Surface Temp.: -173 °C (Lunar Night)
Habitat TM Temp. Setpoint: 22 °C

Simulation Time:
01:47:55
 Hrs Min Sec

Conceptual Habitat Diagram:

Cyber Systems (RT Machine)

Disruption: SPL Damage TM Damage

SPL System:

Stored Energy: 81%

Agent System:
Status: Free
Power Demand: 0.00 kW

Physical Systems (Measured)

Interior Temperature:

TM System: OFF ☐ ON ☒

Power Consumption:

Indoor Unit Refrigerant Temperature:

Health Management System

FDD Output ⚠
 FDD SPL: Faulty
 FDD TM: Healthy

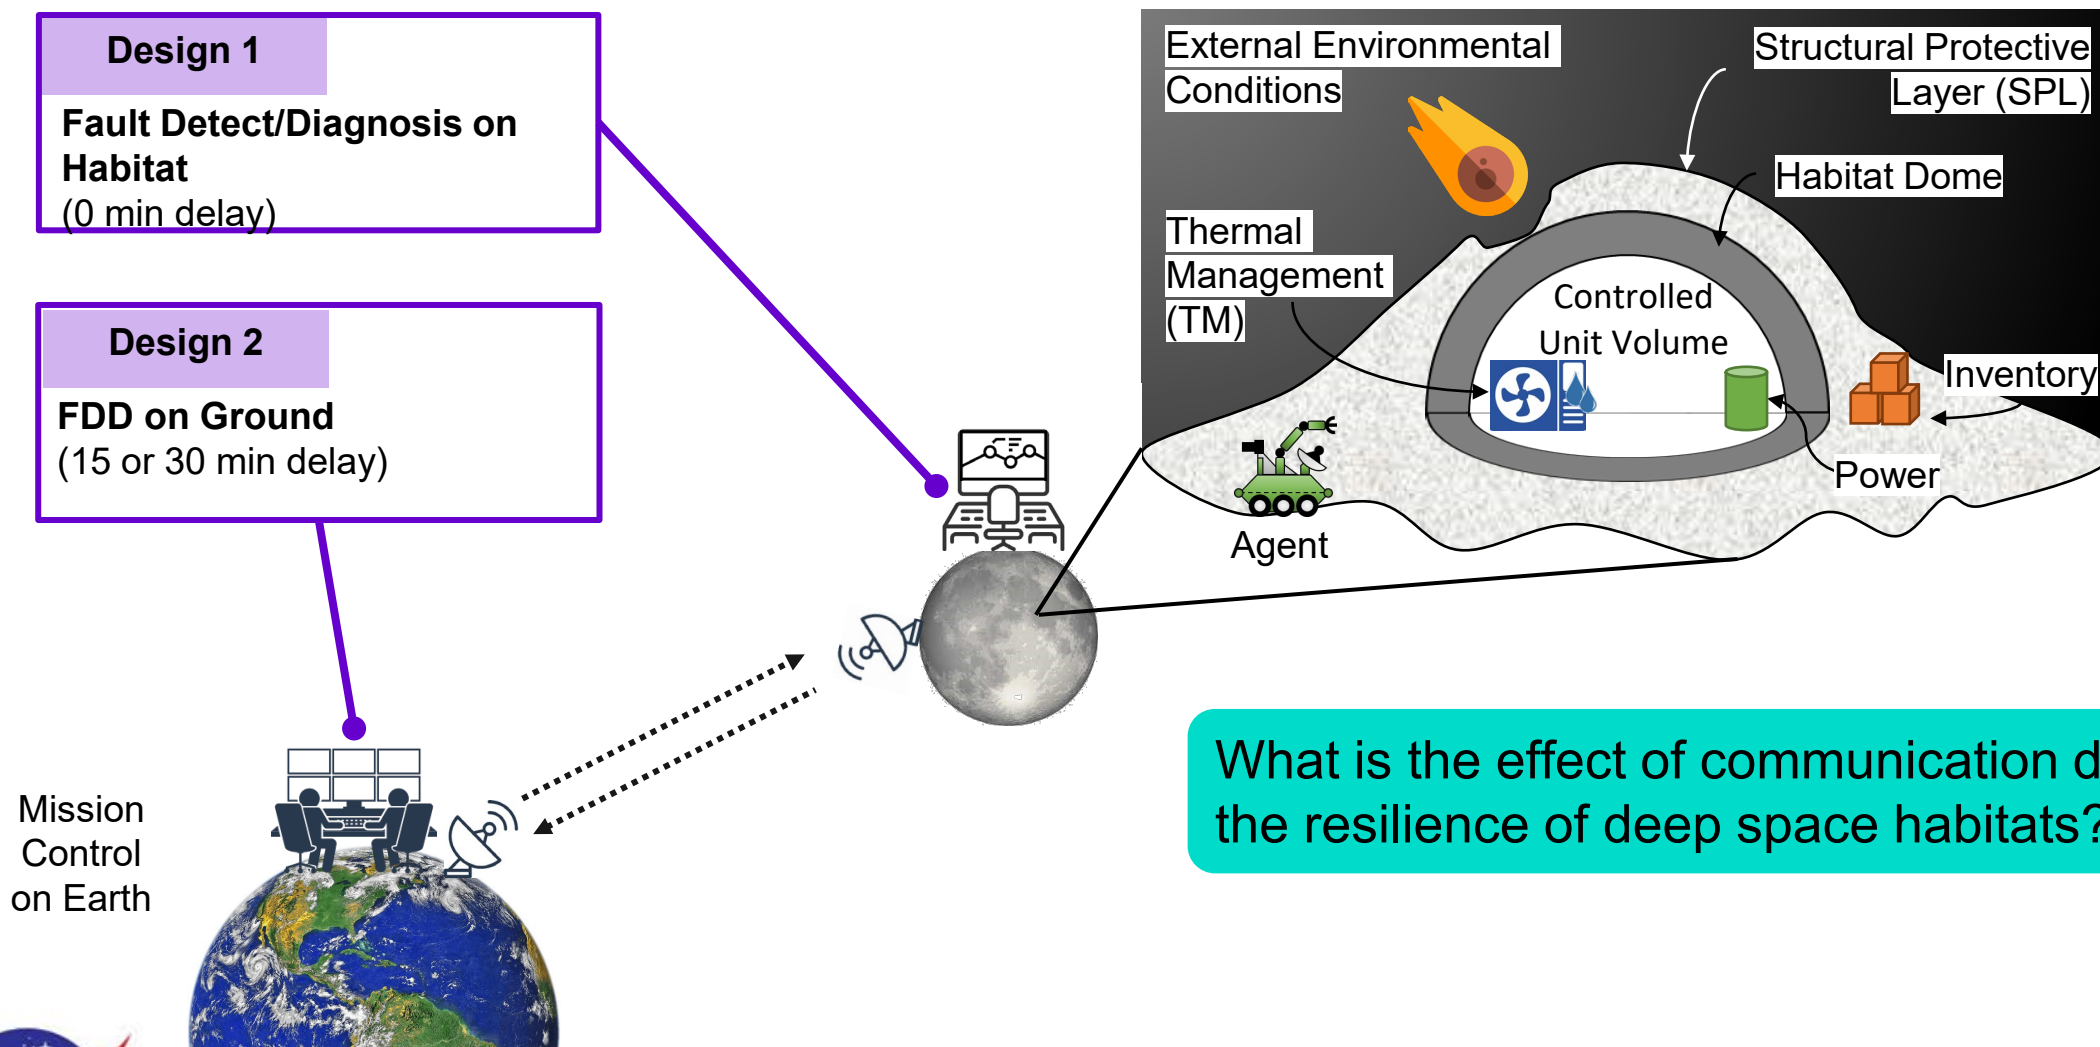

DR Output

Unknown	TM
Good
Suspect	SPL 1-9
Bad

C2 Decision
 # Standby
 # Inspect SPL

Autonomous Operation & Situational Awareness

What is the effect of communication delays on the resilience of deep space habitats?

Scenario:

Episode “SPL Damage” on “FDD on Habitat” Design

1 Nominal Condition

2 Micrometeorite Strike

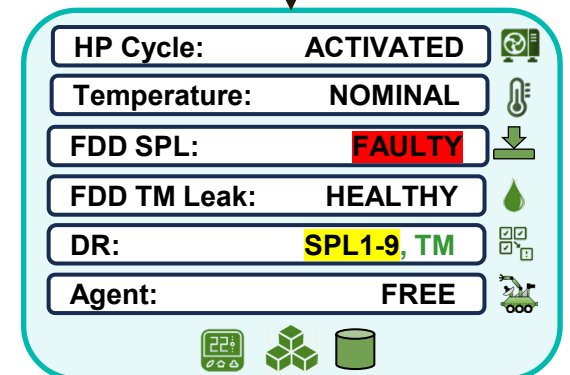

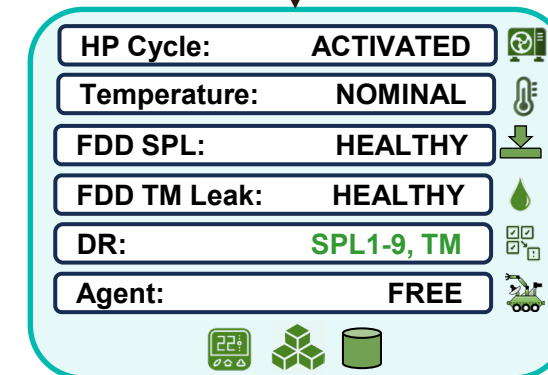

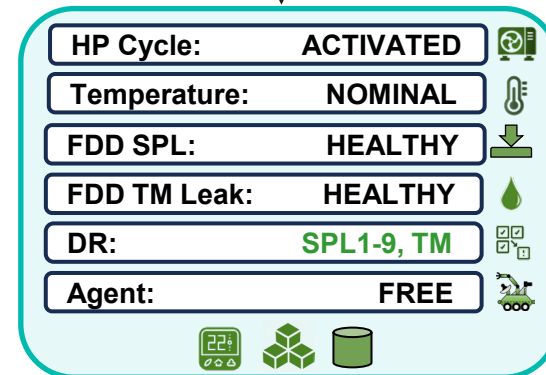

3 Increase in TM Power Consumption

4 FDD SPL Detection

Habitat System

Perceived by C2

Decision

STANDBY

STANDBY

STANDBY

SPL INSPECTION

Scenario:

Episode “SPL Damage” on “FDD on Habitat” Design

5 SPL Inspection by Agent

6 SPL Repair by Agent

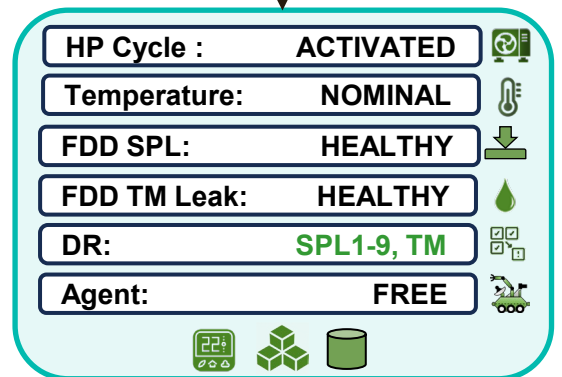

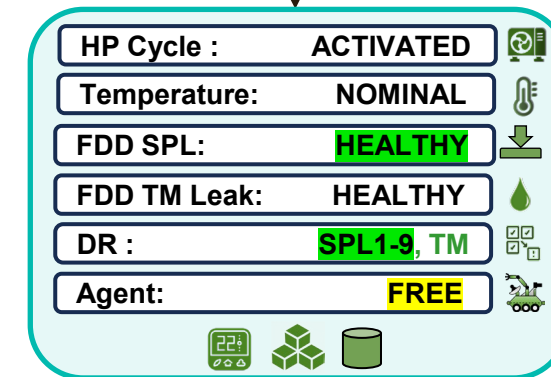

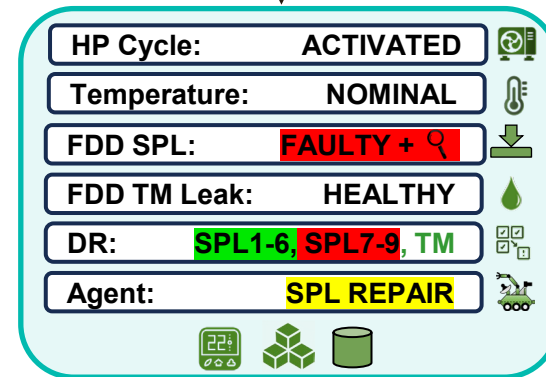

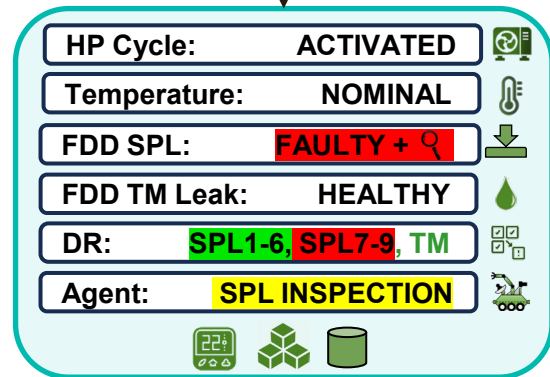

7 SPL Repair Completed

8 Recovery

Habitat System

Perceived by C2

Decision

SPL REPAIR

STANDBY

STANDBY

STANDBY

Results

FDD Delay

Episode 1: SPL Damage

0 min

15 min

30 min

FDD Delay

Episode 2: SPL Damage and TM Leak

0 min

15 min

30 min

Hazards

Vacuum

Micrometeorites

Dust

Low Gravity

Radiation

Thermal extremes

Long nights

Moonquakes

Fire

Biohazards

Challenges

Disruptions are inevitable

Cascading consequences

Limited foresight

Constrained resources

Degradation, repairs

Uncrewed periods

Communication delays &
blackouts

Bandwidth limitations

Opportunities

Tiny, low-power sensors

Pervasive computing

Predictive science

Artificial intelligence

Data !

Some of the Lessons We Have Learned

AI is going to be more and more relevant for the management of our complex systems with deep informational dependencies. Current safety and resilience engineering frameworks do not account for these classes.

Control effectiveness and resilience potential metrics help assess safety controls from early development to detailed design. Control effectiveness focuses on foreseen hazards, while resilience potential addresses unforeseen hazards.

The opportunity to work with real hardware – i.e., a testbed that is modular and reconfigurable – is essential to reveal the real challenges and allows for testing ideas.

Access to reliable, documented data sets is critical for tackling questions about modeling, fault detection, digital twins, and interconnectedness.

Acknowledgements

Supported under an STRI grant from the STMD 80NSSC19K1076

Thanks to Dr. Takaharu Igarashi who generated the images of the RETH institute notional space habitat.

Website:
<https://www.purdue.edu/rethi/>

Resilient and Smart Extraterrestrial Habitats
Coming soon, ~May 2025

Look for RETH institute in: LinkedIn

PURDUE UNIVERSITY
Discovery Park

 PURDUE UNIVERSITY

Ray W. Herrick Laboratories